Section 1. Personal Statement.

The Applicant must complete the Personal Statement which provides the Applicant with an opportunity to demonstrate to the Admissions Committee his or her strengths and capabilities as well as any achievements that distinguish him or her as a desirable applicant to the Integrated Rehabilitation & Humanities (IRH) Program. Personal Statements typically include information about what led the Applicant to apply to the Program, the Applicant's preparedness for study in the Program, and the Applicant's future aspirations once graduated from the Program. The Personal Statement is also an opportunity for the Applicant to highlight his or her non-academic achievements. The members of the Admissions Committee will consider the Personal Statement in the context of the rest of the Supplemental Application. The Personal Statement must be authored entirely by the Applicant and must not exceed 3000 characters (approximately 500 words) in length.
